DISPOSABLE FILM FESTIVAL ANNOUNCES STAR JUDGE

SAN FRANCISCO, California (November 4, 2010) – The Disposable Film Festival announced that Ted Hope, one of the most powerful and influential men in Independent film, will serve as a member of this year's jury. Ted is a pedigree independent producer with a career that spans over two decades. Some of his award-winning work includes The Savages, 21 Grams, In The Bedroom, American Splendor and Happiness. Notably, he also co-founded an independent reviewing website HammerToNail.com, and recently lectured as a Keynote Speaker at the Power To The Pixel trans-media conference in London. His knowledge and passion for independent film continues to inspire filmmakers and producers around the world.

Ted's ground-breaking work and ability to redefine the term "Independent" makes him the perfect addition to the festival's jury, according to festival Assistant Director Katie Gillum. "The Disposable Film Festival is happy and excited to welcome Ted Hope to our team of judges. Ted has helped create genre-bending work that fully uses technology but retains the goal of good storytelling." Festival Co-Founder Carlton Evans added, "We thought Ted fit the ethos of the DFF. The fact that we met at the Vimeo Film Festival in New York speaks to that. We're honored to have him serve as a judge as he's one of the most progressive thinkers of the new film landscape. We are both huge fans of his work."

Disposable Film Festival Winners will be selected based on the inventive and experimental use of media as well as the content of the film. The Festival is accepting entries to the 2011 program until November 30, 2010. Interested parties should submit at the following link: <http://disposablefilmfest.com/submit>

ABOUT THE DISPOSABLE FILM FESTIVAL

This unique festival was created in 2007 to celebrate the artistic potential of disposable video: short films made on non-professional devices such as one-time use video cameras, cell phones, point and shoot cameras, webcams, computer screen capture software, and other readily available video capture devices.
